

4-5 It's the hazards, stupid

As HSE pushes the discredited science of "behavioural safety," Hazards issues a BS alert – however many hazards you face at work, when things go wrong you can now safely assume behavioural safety schemes will find "it's all your fault."

6-7 We don't care

A Hazards round-up of safety abuses at work, and a call for "corporate responsibility" to be about protecting more than shareholders' money.

8-11 News in brief

Bored to death. Overworked, overstressed, ready to quit. Hours up down under. What price on your life. Smoke and mirrors. Smoke free works best. HSE says stop it. Businessmen behaving badly.

12-13 Don't write us off

New TUC research will underpin one of its most important campaigns – the push for a better deal for workplace injury victims and for effective rehabilitation services.

14-15 Job retention

Simple measures could reduce the length of time workers are off sick and could reduce lost income and protect jobs. A Hazards guide to keeping your job when injury or sickness strikes.

Centrepages Victimisation

How to use your union and your legal rights to avoid becoming a safety scapegoat. The Hazards factsheet.

18-19 Safety in numbers

Health and safety is a top priority for global union federation ICEM. Whether it's child diamond polishers in India or diamond miners in South Africa, ICEM's Ian Graham says unions make a world of difference. A Hazards photofile.

20-21 Safety is better organised

When an official safety agency investigated what makes workplaces safer, it got a surprise. It was union safety reps – not managers, safety officers or inspectors – who made work safer. Plus more news from the safety frontline.

22-27 What the unions say

Shortsighted VDU vision. UNISON call centre stress charter. End violence to traffic wardens. T&G anger over farm safety. Hazards Questionnaire. TUC demands more from Europe. Union wins EU hours case. Self-employed need real rights. Yes ministry. What's a rep to do? Union victory in asbestos case. Asbestos bans. ILO revises work diseases list. Make Europe act on asbestos. Events.
